

Jill Barry joined the Montgomery Museum of Fine Arts in 2012 as Deputy Director where she has been tasked with fundraising for the Museum and spearheading several institution-wide projects including a redesign of the website, the 25th Anniversary Celebration, and project oversight of the new Sculpture Garden. She came to Montgomery from Naples Florida, where she was the Director of External Affairs during the construction and start up phases of the nation's newest botanical garden. Prior to that, she held leadership positions at several acclaimed art museums, including; the Walters Art Museum in Baltimore, the Cincinnati Art Museum and the Cleveland Museum of Art.